The Oil and Flatulence Issue – February 34, 2011

This issue of the Utardian, while pure fiction and not referenced to any individual of group, is dedicated to our Uintah County Commissioners.

UTAH SUES COLORADO OVER AIR

In a recent move by Utah State Representative Ken Ivory the Utah Legislature passed legislation to litigate Colorado over marijuana tainted air blowing into Eastern Utah.

Despite Mormon Church dogma: “10 And again, verily I say unto you, all wholesome herbs God hath ordained for the constitution, nature, and use of man” Ivory commented: “Well I believe in LDS church dogma, but this noxious smoke is turning those county commissioners on the Eastern Utah border into lunatics. Why they even use the word Wilderness in public.”

Ivory’s bill would spend around 14 million tax dollars to fund the litigation. When asked where the funds would come from Ivory said they’ll tax them non-locals who are trying to lock up Utah lands.

At a recent press conference Utah Governor Gary Herbert said he would ponder signing the bill. When asked to compare the Colorado smoke infringement with 3,200 Uintah and Duchesne County uncapped wells leaking methane into the air Herbert quoted Uintah County Commissioner Bill Stringer who said: “Huh!” It is not clear which way Herbert leans on the issue, an unidentified source noted the Govner had unusually red eyes and had just eaten 6 bags of Cheetos. Some state officials believe another Utah suit, costing another estimated 14 million dollars to take over federal lands within the state is part of Utah’s secret move to grow and sell ‘weed’ to neighboring Colorado. Dat wouldn’t make any sense mumbled a seemingly confused Herbert, but he followed it by saying: “Knot much makes cents in Utah anyway, so don’t worry, what’ be the problem, man?”

VIOLENCE HITS UTAH OILPATCH

Rapidly falling oil prices have created a wave of violence in Eastern Utah. A Uintah County Victim Advocate told the Utardian: “The oil booms are like an abusive domestic relationship: “I know if I let him back in he won’t hit me this time; it’ll be different.” And it is.

A red eyed County Commissioner Mark Raymond, while stuffing his mouth with Cheetos mumbled: “People talk about boom and bust, well that will never happen because I do what the people who elected me want. That is why we have the Mark Raymond Memorial Convention Center. I am like a God and I know that I am the way to the light, follow me” he said as he opened a family sized Hershey bar.

UTAH TO TAKE OVER FEDERAL LANDS

The Utah Legislature was abuzz this week over anticipation that Governor Herbert would take 14 million dollars from education to file suit for Utah to take over what the State Representative Ivory considers Utah sovereign lands. “My pappy squatted over this land, he squatted all over this land and my brothers and my sisters squatted all over this land” Ivory said. Another Utah legislator was heard to say, “Who are the feds to tell us to cover up our squat, they don’t know squat like we know squat. We’ve lived in it, eaten it, fed it to our children and mules, how dare they tell us what to do with our squat!”
